

Imagine if your veterinary clinic offered relief and refreshment to pets who suffer from constant allergies? What if it was a place where pollen, dust, ragweed and other irritants were non-existent?

Dear Veterinarian,

You've seen it time and time again. Dozens of pets come into your office suffering from a myriad of environmental allergies. They scratch, rub and lick incessantly causing their skin to become raw and painful. As a skilled veterinarian, there is little you can do except prescribe allergy shots or antihistamines with the hope that they will provide some relief.

But now you can do even more than that.

With the help of an advanced technology, you can transform your clinic into a place where environmental allergies literally disappear. Pets who struggle to sit still for 10 minutes due to incessant itching will suddenly feel relaxed, calm and peaceful. Dogs or cats who cannot stop rubbing their face on the carpet or chewing their pads, will find themselves transported to a haven of refreshment upon entering your clinic.

How is this possible?

PetAirapy manufactures a line of air disinfectant systems that eradicate allergens, purify the environment and circulate fresh, clean air throughout your place of business. By installing one of our in-duct or portable units, you will be able to keep your facility allergen-free year around (even at the height of allergy season). We utilize the same air-purifying technology as hospitals and government buildings. Through careful testing and rigorous adaption, we have brought this powerful technology to the pet industry.

Banish Allergies and Discomfort From Your Clinic

PetAirapy units sanitize and purify the air by eliminating pollen, ragweed, dust and other particles that cause allergies and irritations. The systems kill 99.9% of bacteria, mold and viruses, offering the highest level of protection on the market. They are easy to install and are effective for up to 5,000 square feet. Not only do the PetAirapy units destroy allergens and bacteria, they also eliminate odors, chemical fumes and other air contaminants. The crisp, clean odorless air circulating throughout your facility will invigorate your staff and cause your four-legged patients to feel calm, peaceful and content—offering them unprecedented relief from their incessant allergies.

Keep Your Facility Fresh and Disease-Free

As a veterinarian, you see hundreds of pets who are ill or suffering from contagious diseases. Your top priority is not only to treat the pets that are ill, but also to protect the ones that are healthy and coming in for their booster shots or annual checkups. If you offer boarding or grooming services, you have an obligation to safeguard the health of these cats and dogs as well. The last thing you need is for a healthy, happy pet to become ill after a visit to your clinic, groom shop or boarding facility.

But how can you keep them safe when bacteria and disease is everywhere? Although you may scrupulously disinfect your facility and exam rooms, this does not guarantee protection.

Let PetAirapy Help!

In addition to offering air-filtration systems, PetAirapy also manufactures commercial strength, germicidal disinfectant units. Utilizing powerful UVC light technology, these units eradicate the microorganisms that cause kennel cough, mersa, parvo, H1M1 virus and a host of other diseases. The PetAirapy units are able to sanitize exam rooms or quarantine rooms, eliminating any germs you may have missed with a manual disinfectant. They can also sanitize your grooming equipment or boarding area to protect pets from disease and other illnesses.
